

IN243W 21st Century Leadership: Public, Connected, and Adaptive

Instructors: Nate Frambach and Kris Stache

Required, MDiv and MA in Diaconal Ministry students (typically 2nd-year) Two semester hours.

DESCRIPTION:

Students in this course will be equipped to see themselves as servant leaders in relation to the Gospel, other individuals, the faith community, and the wider public. By studying systems theory, diverse forms of communication, and strategies for stewarding local resources, the course cultivates personal leadership skills, capacities, and assets for leadership. This course includes direct training in interpersonal boundaries.

OBJECTIVES:

1. To articulate from a Christian theological perspective, leadership as gospel centered and publicly oriented.
2. To integrate one's own vision for public Christian leadership in light of the Triune God's mission in and through congregations and communities (agencies, organizations, and institutions).
3. To identify, affirm, and further develop one's gifts and skills for ministry, and empower others to identify, affirm, and develop their own skills and gifts for ministry.
4. To explore the systemic dimension of congregational life, deepen one's ability to engage in complex systemic analysis, and apply basic concepts from system's theory to one's own leadership.
5. To steward professional boundaries in relationship to the congregation as a system, with particular attention to the dynamics of sexual misconduct and one's own ethical commitments in relationship to stewardship of one's own life.

PASTORAL DIACONAL PRACTICES:

- Practice of Biblical and Theological Wisdom
- Practice of Complex Analysis
- Practice of Personal Faith and Integrity
- Practice of Evangelical Listening and Speaking the Faith to Others

PROCEDURE:

A combination of lecture, class discussion, assigned reading, and personal reflection will guide our shared learning. Regular attendance and active participation in all class work is expected.

EVALUATION:

Students will be evaluated on several short writing assignments and class participation.
