

MN 270W Pastoral Care in Context

Instructor: Nathan Frambach

Fulfills pastoral care distribution requirement

Open to all

3 credits; credit/no credit

Description:

This course will provide a working framework for an integrated understanding of pastoral care in the life and ministry of a congregation. Students will be challenged to claim their own approach as a pastoral caregiver and identify the most salient principles and practices for effective pastoral care ministry. A variety of “contexts” for pastoral care will be considered (e.g., loss and grief, developmental and situational crises, illness, life stages, family systems, assessment, addictions, inter alia).

Objectives:

1. To discuss and reflect critically on the systemic, socio-cultural, and theological issues in the lives of human beings from the perspective of the congregation (practice of complex analysis).
2. To develop an approach to pastoral care that is attentive to a broad and deep theological interpretation of human experience, thus employing the more normative resources for ministry (e.g., Scripture, theological thinking, prayer, ritual) as well as current, emerging resources (e.g., literature, film, music, new media) (practice of biblical and theological wisdom).
3. To grow in self-awareness as a helping person in terms of personal and professional identity, thus exploring the way in which the self of the caregiver is intrinsic to the process of Christian caregiving (practice of personal faith and integrity).
4. To grow in awareness and knowledge about the “ordinary” (developmental) crises inherent in the various “stages” of human life (practice of pastoral concern).
5. To gain a working understanding of what happens to human beings in situational (accidental) crises (e.g., illness, grief, etc.) (practice of pastoral concern).
6. To develop an appreciation of the whole community’s responsibility in caring for one another, and the pastoral leader’s primary role as one of helping to form a community committed to the per mutuum colloquium et consolationem fratrum (the mutual conversation and consolation of the saints) (practice of evangelical listening and speaking the faith).
7. To appreciate contributions from the social sciences toward understanding human health and brokenness, on both the individual and systemic level; and to encourage networking with others in the broader community (e.g., mental health professionals, local educators, etc.) who are committed to the health and well-being of the people (practice of immersion in context).
8. To distinguish and appreciate and respect the distinction between pastoral counseling and pastoral care, thus coming to understand and embrace the practice of referral as pastoral care (practice of personal faith and integrity).
9. To propose and critically evaluate a missional, contextual, and congregational approach to pastoral care (practice of Missio Dei in Word and Sacrament).

Procedure:

There will be a balance between lecture/presentation and discussion in both plenary sessions and small groups. A variety of teaching and learning methods will be employed and integrated into the class sessions and process. Shared learning and leadership are valued and expected.

Course Expectations & Evaluation:

1. Class attendance is participation and will be tracked by the Instructor.
2. It is expected that careful attention will be given to assigned reading for the course.
3. Two (2) short papers (2—3 pages each) and a small group project will be evaluated
4. Approximately one (1) hour of the allotted course time will be dedicated to providing students the freedom to pursue selected research in an area of personal interest in pastoral care.
